Art Unit: 2815

The disclosure is objected to because of the following informalities: on page 10 line 10 "in" should be --is--. Also, it is not clear what applicant intends by stating that the index of refraction n of the coupling layer is less than 1. Most solids have an index of refraction greater than 1 because the speed of light in them is less than in a vacuum. .

Appropriate correction is required. See also claim 5.

The numbering of claims is not in accordance with 37 CFR 1.126 which requires the original numbering of the claims to be preserved throughout the prosecution. When claims are canceled, the remaining claims must not be renumbered. When new claims are presented, they must be numbered consecutively beginning with the number next following the highest numbered claims previously presented (whether entered or not).

Misnumbered claim 14 (2nd one) has been renumbered 15. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

(a) the invention was known or used by others in this country, or patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country, before the invention thereof by the applicant for a patent.

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

Art Unit: 2815

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1,3-10,18 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as anticipated by or, in the alternative, under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as obvious over Chen '681.

Chen shows a first active layer 5 coupled to a second active layer 13 enabling wavelength conversion. Claim 1 is anticipated. Claims 3 and 4 are rejected because the sapphire substrate is an intermediary layer. Claim 5 is rejected as the sapphire layer of Chen couples the light emitting layers. Claims 6-8,18 are rejected because the first active layer comprises a GaN led. Claim 9 is rejected because the light emitted by the second active layer is longer wavelength than the uV light of the first layer. Claim 10 is likewise rejected.

Claims 1-10,18 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Chen in view of Mueller-Mach '102.

Mueller-Mach suggests more than one layer of conversion film for Chen to provide multiple wavelength emission. See figure 2 for example. Claim 2 is obvious.

Claims 1,6-11,18 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as anticipated by or, in the alternative, under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as obvious over Sadamasa '791.

Sadamasa teaches a p-n junction A3B5 material with a first active layer 14 and a second active layer 15. Claims 1,6-11,18 are anticipated.

Claims 12-17,19-21 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

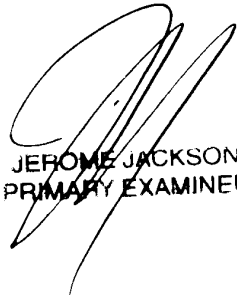

Galginaitis '069 is relevant art.
